FISHING PARTY

The members of the fishing party who were at Salt river Sunday are not seeking publicity, therefore we were able to obtain only seven names, though there were eight in the party.

The seven were Messrs. Feist, Sutton, Cox, Dorrington, Boucher, R. W. Grabe and Alton Grabe. They are reported to have secured about 200 pounds of fish, but brought home only five—not pounds but fishes. One of the gentlemen, however, asserts that the others will be sent in on a freight train, having been left alive in the stream until transportation could be provided. The teams were unequal to the task of carrying the added burden as one of them was almost exhausted as it was. Of course, that is the only reason for bringing so few fish.

SOCIAL CIRCLES

BY EDNA SUBERUS HASSE

A woman recently died in New York at the age of 105 years. She said she had paid no particular attention to diet, exercise, or sleep, but had made it a point to spend much of her time with young people, even taking part in children's games with real pleasure.

Now if we would all attain a ripe old age we must form clubs for the purpose of indulging in children's games and sports. No more must the middle-aged matron be stately and dignified. She must romp and frolic on the greenward, and play "Drop the Handkerchief" and "Tag, You're It" and she must climb the apple tree. Who'll be the first to take up the new movement.

A young couple in Evansville, Ind., were recently married from the roof of the court house. Newly married people were always known to be pretty much above the everyday affairs but the reason for this high-up wedding was to enable the bride to win a wager.

A girl in Watertown, S. D., recently saved her own life and that of her companion by the use of her slipper. She did not use it in the traditional way, however. They were crossing Lake Kampeska during a severe storm when every wave poured a quantity of water into the boat. While her companion rowed with all his might the girl with great presence of mind pulled off her slipper and busied herself by bailing water from the boat. By so doing she was able to keep the boat from sinking until they were within fifty feet of the shore where the water was shallow enough to permit wading to land. Surely better than indulging in hysterics. The young lady's name was Best, and she did her best, which was sufficient for the occasion.

FOR WOMEN AND THE HOME
Glycerine will stop a hinge from squeaking.
Cheesecloth is excellent for polishing glassware.
Never use a very hot iron on flannels or woollens.
Gently combing the hair will soothe and relieve nervousness.
A fork is better for mixing flour with milk or water than a spoon.
To make pastry light add a little lemon juice to the water when mixing.
Glass spoons are better than silver spoons for taking medicine, as they do not tarnish.
If wicks for lamps or oil stoves are first stanch and ironed they can be fitted much easier.
A teaspoonful of salt to a bucket of water will prevent dye running or fading from many colored materials.
The juice of a lime, squeezed in half a glass of water, with a little soda, will often drive away a sick headache.
A bowl of hot milk taken immediately before retiring is said to be better for inducing sleep than any opiate or other drug.

MEASURING SOCIAL
A measuring social will be given by the young people of the Epworth league at the reading room in the annex of the M. E. church on Friday evening. The young people are doing all they can to make these rooms one of the most pleasant places in the city in which to spend an idle hour and a great many seem to be finding them so.

You are invited to attend on Friday evening as you will see by reading the following unique lines of invitation:
"A measuring party is given to you; 'Tis something novel, something new. Five cents for every foot you are tall. Measure yourself 'gainst door or wall; An extra cent for each inch give. And thereby show how high you live. For measure and fun, refreshments and pleasure, Come one, come all, to our party of measure."

FISHING PARTY
The members of the fishing party who were at Salt River Sunday are not seeking publicity, therefore we were able to obtain only seven names, though there were eight in the party. The seven were Messrs. Feist, Sutton, Cox, Darrington, Bousher, H. W. Grabe and Alton Grabe. They are reported to have secured about 200 pounds of fish, but brought home only five—not pounds but fishes. One of the gentlemen, however, asserts that the others will be sent in on a freight train, having been left alive in the stream until transportation could be provided. The game was unequal to the task of carrying the added burden as one of them was almost exhausted as it was. Of course, that is the only reason for bringing on few fish.

Many Noted Trunk Mysteries Recalled by Sigel Murder

NEW YORK, June 28.—When Leon Ling, after his butchery of Miss Elsie Sigel, sought to hide his crime by poking her mutilated remains in a trunk, he but followed a precedent established by numerous murderers whose crimes are famous in the police annals of America. The famous Maxwell-Preller case still lives in the public mind, though more than twenty years have elapsed since the crime was committed. Preller, an Englishman, murdered his traveling companion and left his remains in a trunk in a St. Louis hotel. The murderer was captured and after a trial that attracted international attention he was convicted and executed.

Probably the most sensational of the so-called trunk murders with which the New York police have ever had to deal was the case of John C. Colt, who murdered a man to whom he owed money. Having attacked his creditor with a weapon which was at hand and killed him, Colt put the body in a trunk and shipped it to New Orleans. All of the wealth of Mr. Colt's brother, who was the inventor of the revolver and who made a great fortune in manufacturing that and other arms, was at the disposal of the counsel retained for Mr. Colt's defense. These chief counsel retained many of the small political lawyers. They reached out all over the city, both for general and probably for specific defense, hoping possibly that some friend of some

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia.

Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.

When it is recalled that Apoplexy, Heart Disease, Cancer—and even Consumption—are due to poor digestion and poisons thus transmitted to the blood, and throughout the system—the importance of maintaining good digestion is at once realized.

We know what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly harmless.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 54 times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.
