Engineers to Go to Mouth of Colorado

There is something doing with the Southern Pacific in connection with the control of the Colorado river below the Mexican line.

Not only have the engineers and surveyors of the S. P. been busy at and near the scene of the recent Ocker-son endeavors to control the Colorado at Bee river, but now a party of S. P. engineers and surveyors are going to the mouth of the Colorado river by boat and return overland.

Joaquin Mendez, one of the best guides around Yuma left here to-day at noon for Andrade where he will join the force of S. P. engineers and surveyors and guide them to the present mouth of the Colorado by boat. Arriving there the boat will be abandoned, and the party will return overland, possibly leaving the boat to be brought back by Mendez and some Indians, or possibly selling or abandoning the boat.

Mendez stated before he left that the party expected to get started to-day or to-morrow.
