THE LATEST ISSUE—The latest issue brought forward by the local democrats who favor Cleveland rather than Hearst is that of water supply. They point to the spring and summer of 1884 when Cleveland’s first boom assumed proportion, as a precedent. During that season there was an unusually long period of high water in Salt River, the ferry boats running both at Phoenix and Tempe all through the month of July. Another remarkable year was 1886, right in the middle of Cleveland’s administration, when both the Salt and Gila rivers were bank full for months. Henry Morgan says he ran his ferry boat on the Gila for six months during that year. These facts ought to insure a Cleveland delegation to Tucson, from Maricopa county, but they probably won’t for the Hearst boomers will never take water.
