HAD TWO WARNINGS
Then John Tilzer, the Islander, Was Drowned
His Wife and Little Daughter Rescued Last Night From the Angry Waters of Salt River.

John Tilzer, who lived with his family on an island in the river at the east end of Seventy street was drowned yesterday afternoon while trying to rescue his wife and little daughter. He had already bought his four boats to the bank and was returning after his wife when his boat struck a hidden wire fence. It was instantly overturned. His wife caught a glimpse of him as he was buried downstream and he was seen no more. Mrs. Tilzer was taken from the island last night by a force sent from the sheriff's office.

This is the third time the Tilzer family has been removed from the island and on the other two occasions Tilzer was taken away against his will. So for him the third time was the charm and his wife was that she will never again trust that dangerous habitation. It is doubtful though if there will be anything left of it for when the boat containing Mrs. Tilzer and her rescuers pushed off last night the waves were breaking over the summit of it.

The river rose so rapidly that little thought was given to the Tilzers until word was brought that the husband had been drowned. Steps were at once taken to rescue his wife. Deputy Sheriff Wayne Davis started out to find a man who could row a boat under great difficulties. He appeared a crowd on the street and asked if anyone knew where he could find a boatman. A man by the name of C. J. Shrum of Hickey was told to have a boat up from the city the next day forward and offered his services. A team was sent to Eastlake park after the boat there and it was taken to the river by Deputy Sheriff Davis, Mr. Shrum and Charlie Storkland.

He was beginning to grow dark and what was to be done must be done quickly. Mrs. Tilzer was standing on the landing with the waves breaking at her feet. Near her was a horse standing in water to his knees. The current between the island and the bank was about 200 yards wide and on the side next the island was running very rapidly. Shrum estimating its velocity had the boat pulled 200 yards up stream and the couple placed on the bank.

Mrs. Tilton was standing on the beach with the waves breaking at her feet. Near her was a horse standing in her knees. The current between the island and the bank was about 200 yards wide and on the side next the island was running very swift. Mrs. Tilton estimated its ve-cocity had the boat carried 200 yards upstream and accompanied by the deputy sheriff pushed out. The deputy the horse was in the center in the handling of the boat and midway through the current so that it dipped water and was on the point of going off. So quickly brought it about and a few minutes later it was driven against the island directly in the current. The deputy jumped out into the water and dragged the horse up.

The woman and the little girl were put into it and Shrum selected in the growing darkness a point on the bank below where he wanted landed. He did it with almost mathematical accuracy. Mrs. Tilton did not seem to be greatly alarmed.

She appeared to be dazed by the loss of her husband and thought of nothing else.

The rescue looked back to see what had happened to the horse but in the darkness he was not visible. Mrs.
Tilton said that shortly before the arrival of the boat she had united him and hurried several calves and a cow. It was not thought that a thing would be found on the island two hours later for between the time the boat set out on its mission of rescue and the time of its return the water had taken a foot.

The stricken Tilton family was taken to the office of the sheriff. Nothing had been saved. There was not even a pair of shoes among the widow and children, all were provided with shoes and clothing and taken to the Valley Hotel for the night.

Shrum, speaking of the incident that night said that he would not undertake another trip like that for all the money he might do so if human life were at stake. He said he did not fully realize the perils of character of it until the boat was out on the way across. He saw no sign of the barbed tire fence which had overturned Tilton's boat and if it had not been washed away it had been covered deep by the rapidly rising water.

destroyed disease that science has been to cure. It is called Catarat. Hall's Catarat Cure is the only positive factor known to the medical profession. Being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarat Cure is taken to act internally, acting directly upon the blood stream and which destroys the disease, and piling the patient strength to build up the system and beating nature in its work. The preparations have been carefully made and safety.
